Major Angelo

(Original.)

During my college days our family lived in Washington, and as they left it before the beginning and returned after the close of hot weather I was not there in vacations. During this period I understood that my sister had a love affair, but since she was older than I and I was at an age when neither my sympathy nor my judgment was in demand very little was said to me about the affair.

A few years later the Spanish-American war broke out, and I, being a lieutenant in the national guard, went out to fight the dons. In the very first encounter in which I took part I was wounded and taken prisoner. I had the good fortune to be located near one of the best Spanish hospitals, to which I was taken and treated with every attention. One morning the officer of the day went through the ward where I was lying in company with the surgeon. When the officer passed my bed I noticed that my face caught his attention. Indeed he stared at me as if he had known me before. The next day I received a basket of fruit to which was attached the card of Major Adelberto Angelo.

Major Angelo came to see me every day after that and loaded me with attentions. Naturally I became very fond of him. I endeavored to gain from him the cause of his having noticed me and of his attentions, but failed signally. He declared that it was the result of fancy. The intimacy lasted five weeks, at the end of which time I was discharged from the hospital and very soon after exchanged.

The next time I saw Angelo he was lying mortally wounded on the battlefield. We were pressing the Spaniards before Santiago, and having cleared a way directly in front of our regiment with a Gatling gun we pushed forward over a field. Stepping over what I supposed was a corpse, I glanced down to be sure that I should not touch it, and looked into the livid face of Major Angelo. It was not permissible for me to leave my company, but I did. Stopping, I raised his head. Angelo opened his eyes, and a loving smile told me that he recognized me. I saw him try to move his lips to speak, but the effort was a failure. Then he fell back—dead.

I went home, like most of my comrades, sick, but it was not long before I was on my feet again and joined the family in October in Washington. My sister had for some time been going into a decline, and my mother forbade me to excite her with accounts of my war experiences, especially my stay in hospital. When I went into Adele's room to greet her after my long and eventful absence, I was puzzled at the look she gave me. It was a hungry look, a look as if I might have news to tell her that she longed to hear. I was shocked at her appearance, and saw that she was doomed. She wished me to talk about the war, but I agreed with my mother that it would not be well to do so, and though Adele kept turning to it, I held to other topics. Indeed, on account of my sister's condition, I was not asked to recount war's horrors, as most of my comrades were, and I was glad of it. Such experiences are more agreeable to the narrator when mellowed by distance, and in my case, with the shadow of death over us, I did not wish to dwell upon them.

One day I was sitting by Adele's bed chatting with her on ordinary topics when she said suddenly: "You were wounded and taken to a hospital when you were in Cuba, weren't you?"

"Yes."

"And a Spaniard was very kind to you?"

"Yes. But you have heard nothing about it from me or from father or mother, because I have not told them a word about it. How did you?"

"Hush. Don't tell them that I mentioned it."

"But tell me!"

At the moment mother came into the room and broke in upon my question. The next time I was alone with Adele I endeavored to reopen the subject, but an expression passed over her face that warned me to desist, and I never referred to it again.

One evening between day and dark I was passing through the lower hall when I saw a figure of a man come in at the front door. Since his back was to the light, I could not see his face, but it was familiar. He appeared to be a gentleman and walked through the hall as if perfectly familiar with the premises. For this reason I did not regard him as a thief, but permitted him to go where he liked, following him from a distance. He mounted the staircase, and I noticed that though there was but the bare wood to walk on his step was so light that I did not hear it. He was considerably in advance of me and had turned and disappeared down the upper hall before I reached the top of the staircase. When I did reach it he was nowhere to be seen. He must have entered some room on that floor, and since Adele's was one of them I hurried toward it. Just before reaching her door, which stood open, I heard the word, spoken in a voice familiar to me: "Come!"

Entering the room, the fading light coming through a window showed me Major Angelo raising Adele in his arms. I passed my hands before my eyes to clear my vision, and when I had done so I saw Adele lying alone, stiff and stark. She was dead.

A few days later my mother told me that Adele's affair of the heart was with Senor Adelberto Angelo, who was at the time an attaché of the Spanish legation. C. AUGUSTUS PORTER.

A CASE OF IT.

Many More Like It In Barre.

The following case is but one of many similar occurring daily in Barre. It is an easy matter to verify its correctness. Surely you cannot ask for better proof than such a conclusive evidence.

Mrs. Wm. L. Huntington (W. L. Huntington, granite cutter, address High Holborn, says: "A friend insisted upon my using Doan's Kidney Pills. From the amount of faith he evinced in the remedy I was induced to go to E. A. Brown's drug store for a box. I badly required just such a remedy as Doan's Kidney Pills proved to be, for I had been annoyed with kidney complaint for an indefinite period. The pain across my back and hips was very severe. If I stooped or straightened after stooping and when the sharp twinges were not in evidence, there was a continual dull aching. Added to the backache was a trouble with the kidney secretions, a sure indication that the action of the kidneys in some way must upset. I knew after the completion of the first box, from the direct action of my kidneys, that I had at last got hold of the remedy badly wanted, or I never would have bought a second nor a third box. To say I am pleased at the results I obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills mildly expresses what I think."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

INTERESTING RELIC.

Punch Bowl Which Once Belonged to the Hero of Ticonderoga.

A punch bowl which belonged to Ethan Allen was recently acquired by John S. White of Burlington.

There seems to be but little doubt as to the authenticity of the bowl. Mr. White purchased it of Charles H. Jones of Keene, N. H. Mr. Jones secured it from W. J. Powers of Washington, N. H., to whom it came from Jennings Ryder, who carried it from Bennington to Washington. Jennings Ryder married Sally Allen, a cousin of the hero of Ticonderoga. Charles H. Jones, from whom Mr. White obtained the bowl, was a grandson of Sally Allen.

The punch bowl is a covered affair and rather crude in finish. It is painted, but does not appear to have been fired after the decorations were completed. Jennings Ryder, one of the former owners of the bowl, always maintained that it was painted by Molly Stark.
